1. Name of the Seminar: Feminism: Issues and Concerns through the glasses of Philosophy and Literature
2. Organized by: Department of Philosophy and Department of Bengali
3. Aim of the Seminar: To better understand what feminism truly stands for, it is necessary to look at where it all started. First-wave feminism started during the nineteenth century in US and UK. The feminists of that time were focused on gaining voting rights and property rights for women. However, with the onset of World War I, feminism escalated into other spheres. With men being sent to war, women who were previously limited to their homes began to join the workforce to earn money and keep the economy afloat. When the war came to an end, women were accustomed to their newfound freedom and refused to be sent back to the confines of being home-makers. As the times changed so did the form of feminism. New ideologies were incorporated and feminism began to evolve. During this transition some misinterpretations gave it a whole new concept and understanding.

1. Name of the Conference: Ishwarchandra Vidyasagar: Jyotirmandali
2. Organized by: Pashchimbanga Bangla Akademi
3. Aim of the conference: The overarching goal of the seminar was to explore the impact and legacy of Vidyasagar, not just in Bengal but across India during the late 19th century. Specialists were asked to reflect on developments around social reform taking place in Maharashtra, South India, Assam, and the Panjab. It instantly became clear just how widely the development of Vidyasagar's vision was felt even during his own lifetime. Yet notwithstanding this important takeaway from the seminar, the decision to pursue Vidyasagar's influences attempted to foster reflection on the generalized spread of social reform across Bengal, it is hardly surprising that Vidyasagar nonetheless was the need for the hour. The department ventured to take the students for the conference where distinguished speakers would analyse and discuss the impact of Vidyasagar within the framework of this state and cultural history.

1. Name of the Seminar: Gender Equality, Mental health & Gender related issues
2. Organized by: Department of Bengali

9. Sponsored amount: 500 Rs
10. Outcome of the Seminar: Work on gender sensitization and awareness building has acquired a certain complacency, given that it circles around issues of enrolment, the relative absence of female figures or removal of gendered stereotypes in textbooks. Such work has proved to be inadequate and as some have argued just skimming the surface of a problem rather than addressing these concerns with greater depth. In order to move forward serious inquiry into curricula, content, the gendered construction of knowledge, as well as a more critical and pro-active approach to issues of gender is necessary. As 'Gender' has to be recognized as a cross-cutting issue and a critical marker of transformation in the minds of the students, this interactive learning resource turned out to be an excellent tool for proper understanding.

1. Name of the Seminar: On Tarashankar Bandyopadhyay
2. Organized by: Department of Bengali
3. Aim of the Seminar: The critical issue of representing marginality often tends to locate 'authenticity' as one of its major concerns. However, to insist that without being an 'insider' to marginal experience, one has no right to represent it, is to fall into the same binary politics of exclusion. In reality, the power-relations among individual identity, gender, religion and creeds are so complex and diverse even within a 'marginal' community that they can challenge any established notion of the binary. Several works by Tarashankar Bandyopadhyay are remarkable for his representation of marginality.
