Teaching and study materials are sourced from e-resources accessed remotely via NList of INFLIBNET, the Central Library OPAC system, and web access. Devices such as laptops, pentabs, and mobile phones are utilized for conducting online classes. A range of digital platforms are employed for this purpose, including Microsoft tools, Zoom, Google Meet, Google Hangout, Google Duo, Google Classroom, and Edumode. Additionally, tools like Xodo PDF Writer, Microsoft Edge, Adobe, and Foxit PDF Reader are used to review and evaluate answer scripts submitted online. Webinars and special lectures are facilitated through platforms such as Google Meet, Webex, and Zoom. Learning materials and academic content are disseminated using apps like email, WhatsApp, and Google Classroom. Video lectures are delivered through Zoom and OBS Studio, while Microsoft Voice Recorder is used to record audio lectures, which are then shared via WhatsApp and email. Skype is also used for conducting online classes.
